BOLSHEVIK GOLD OFFER CONSIDERED IN LONDON

Soviet Chief Treats With World For Trade Grants

MAY BE "TOOL"

Money "Tainted," Says Speaker In House Of Commons

STOLEN, CLAIM

Others Attack Proposed Agreement To Trust Provisional Govt.

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 7.—The Daily Telegraph states that the negotiations with M. Krassin have hitherto given no results, which indicates that M. Krassin's stay in London is likely to be a long one.

It is pointed out that M. Krassin quitted Moscow several months ago and has since lost the confidence of the real rulers, who are only using him as a tool.

London, June 7.—Colonel John Gretton (Conservative), moving the adjournment, asked the meaning of the negotiations with M Krassin. He said that the Russian Government was "tainted with a record of violence and murders, Russia had nothing with which to trade with Great Britain." Colonel Gretton ridiculed the stories of the bursting Russian granaries and added, moreover, that the sum of £65,000,000, which it was suggested Russia held for payment of imports, was largely stolen gold belonging to one or other of the Allies.

"STOLEN GOODS"

Colonel Sir Samuel Hoare (Unionist) condemned attacks on the Premier. He said that the latter had two fundamental interests at heart, the need for goods and peace. Nevertheless, he continued, it would be the impression here and in France, if we accepted Russian gold, that we were acting as receivers of stolen goods.

Replying, Mr. Lloyd George said that the decision to trade with Russia had been taken in Paris with M. Clemenceau in the chair. All the Allies represented on that occasion came to the unanimous decision that it was desirable to open trade relations. The Prime Minister declared that the Allies had acted in this connection upon evidence from anti-Bolsheviks who had been driven out of Russia but were associated with the co-operative movement. Subsequently the San Remo conference passed a resolution declaring readiness to discuss with M. Krassin the best methods of a resumption of trade. It was upon this decision, and by the assent of all the Allies, that the

MONEY REFORMS ENGAGE SIBERIA

Chinese Reported To Have Shot General Kalmikoff At Kirin

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Vladivostok, June 8.—The money reform question is claiming much attention in the press and opinion seems to be divided on the subject. The foreign banks and Consuls are holding meetings to discuss the reform but the results are not yet known.

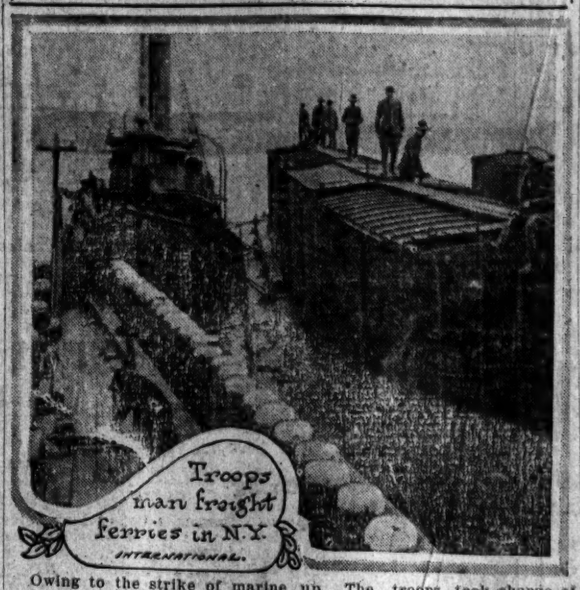
It is rumored that the Chinese have shot General Kalmikoff at Kirin for shelling Chinese boats on the Amur last year and entering Chinese territory with armed forces.

DIPLOMAT LEAVES

Harbin, June 8.—M. Utkin, who took part in the Russo-Japanese negotiations at Habarovsk, has left Habarovsk for Blagoveschensk with the object of informing the local authorities and the population of the results attained in the negotiations.

It is stated that the Blagoveschensk political center is prepared to take up negotiations with the Japanese through M. Utkin.

Marine Strike Paralyses Transport Service In New York



Owing to the strike of marine men which practically paralysed transport service in New York, detachments of troops from Governors Island were detailed to see that army freight was not tied up. The troops took charge of tugs, cars and floats, attending to the loading and unloading, keeping a steady stream of supplies on the way to the headquarters of the Department of the East.

Shanghai No Place For Pet Dogs, Warns Stanley; Guard Against Rabies

More Than 2500 Free Vaccinations Made, Health Officer Says, While Discussing Recent Campaign Of Y. M. C. A. Members In Settlement

Warning the people of Shanghai to guard against rabies and giving rules to be followed in the case of a bite from a mad dog, Dr. Arthur Stanley, Health Officer, has an interesting article and report in today's issue of the Municipal Gazette.

In his monthly report the Health Officer says:

"Over 2,500 free vaccinations were done at the Branch Health Offices during the month. Considerable assistance was given by some of the boys of the Chinese Y.M.C.A. who organised a Health Campaign, including the whipping in of the unvaccinated.

TYPHUS FEVER

"There was a small outbreak of Typhus fever among Municipal prisoners which was nipped in the bud by delousing operations.

"There has been an exceptional incidence of Rabies among dogs in Shanghai, as has previously been recorded in May and June. Twenty persons had to undergo the Pasteur treatment during the month as a preventive. Those who have not seen the notice giving information regarding Rabies and telling people what to do may obtain a copy on application to the Health Officer or from their District Health Inspectors. Persons keeping dogs should recognise the special danger in Shanghai where the Settlement is surrounded by a perennial source of Rabies infection.

NO PLACE FOR PET DOGS

"Further steps may become necessary to very considerably reduce the number of dogs as a measure for the protection of the public. That there is a marked indifference to the Muzzling Order must be apparent to anyone who is on the lookout for unmuzzled dogs. Like so many other Public Health measures the remedy lies with the public themselves, under expert direction. Shanghai is no proper place for keeping pet dogs.

Regarding rabies or hydrophobia the Health Office says:

The disease, Rabies or hydrophobia, is an acute fatal disease, generally communicated to man through a wound made by the teeth of some infected animal, the saliva being the infective medium. Dogs, cats, goats, cows, horses, and other animals are susceptible to the disease and their bites are very dangerous. Hydrophobia may also be contracted by allowing the saliva (froth) of an infected animal to come in contact with a cut or scratch. This sometimes happens in adjusting muzzles, in trying to remove what seems to be a bone in the throat, or in giving medicines. The saliva may be virulent (poisonous) for one or two days before a dog shows any signs of being sick.

Symptoms.—The disease in the dog appears in two forms. In the furious type, he may suddenly leave home, wandering off for many miles, perhaps, to return in a day or two emaciated, wounded, and utterly changed. During the time of "running mad" he may have bitten many persons and other animals. He seems impelled to bite anything that comes in his way. He cannot be said, as a rule, to fight with other dogs. He bites them and passes on, but does not go out of his way very much to attack them. His main object seems to be to keep moving, as if to escape something. The dumb variety is characterised by progressive paralysis of the lower jaw, change in character of bark, and marked nervousness. The animal may appear very affectionate, but may bite without warning. Death usually really results in from three to six days from the onset of sickness.

When an animal is supected of having this disease it should be captured at once, if possible, and securely confined. A veterinary surgeon should be called to see the dog, or the circumstance should be reported to the nearest Police Station where they will arrange without payment for the transfer of the dog to the Observation Kennel under the care of the Health Officer.

Dogs, suspected of rabies, should, if possible, be captured alive; but they may be killed, if danger of any person being bitten can thereby be avoided. The reason being that if preserved alive it can be ascertained in a day or two whether the animal has rabies, while if killed it usually takes fourteen days to find out.

When other dogs have been bitten by a rabid dog they should either be killed immediately or handed over to the charge of a veterinary surgeon.

What to do when bitten.—The bite of any animal should be cleaned throughout its depth and cauterised as soon as possible by a doctor.

The person bitten should come to the Health Officer to see if Pasteur Treatment is necessary.

It is absolutely necessary for persons bitten by rabid animals or animals suspected of rabies to have the Pasteur Treatment. This is given at the Municipal Health Office and takes about three weeks. The fee for Pasteur Treatment is Tls. 50 reducible in cases of necessity.

Many Candidates For G.O.P. Honors

(Reuter's Service)

Chicago, June 7.—There is a formidable roster of candidates at the Republican National Convention which promises to open tomorrow with no decisive advantage for any presidential aspirant. The greatest uncertainty reigns with regard to the conventions potential choice.

General Leonard Wood is now credited with 124 delegates, and Senator Johnson with 112, with Judge Hughes. Mr. Lowden and others as possible compromise candidates. Possibly the final choice will depend on an agreement between the party leaders.

Mr. de Valera is here urging the adoption of a declaration in the Republican Party platform favoring freedom for Ireland.

RICE PRICE NOW $11.70; WUSIH STOPS EXPORTATION

$300,000 Worth Of Cereal On Way To Japan Is Seized Here

SUPPLY IS LOW

Only Half Of Ordinary Number Of Junks Reach Port During Week

Rice took a big leap yesterday and the closing quotation last evening was $11.70. The cause of the sudden jump was the report from Wusih, where large quantities are exported, that the local authorities had put the ban on exportation.

Steps will be taken today by the local organisations to urge the Wusih authorities to reconsider their decision and ship the cereal to Shanghai at once in order to avert a disastrous shortage. Although exportation to foreign countries has been forbidden, there is no law preventing the cereal from being shipped from one part of the province to another

9,000 BAGS SEIZED

Following the notice to the Customs authorities to watch for smuggled rice, 9,000 bags valued at over $300,000 have been seized from a Russian ship which is bound for Japan. It is claimed that the goods were purchased by a Chinese merchant in Nagasaki from the Yangtsze Valley districts. In spite of the protests of the Russian authorities, the local officials refuse to release the cereal, alleging that there is enough suspicion over the goods to warrant a seizure and investigation. They have asked the military and civil Governors of Kiangsu for instructions for the disposal of the rice.

Statistics on the import of rice to Shanghai show that, during the week ended yesterday, only 131 junks of rice reached this port, against 300-odd at ordinary times. These mostly come from Sunkiang, Kuoli, Tsingpu, Chen-

WORLD SHORTAGE OF WHEAT TO COME, SAYS NOTE

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 7.—Increasing anxiety is being felt at the prospects of a world shortage of wheat. It is pointed out that sowing has declined in all the great wheat-producing countries.

The exports from the United States next season will be practically nil. Australia has no wheat to spare while Russia is only exporting a fraction of her former total.

A leading miller, interviewed by the Daily Mail, declared that the position was very serious. The failure of next year's crop would mean famine and the price of the loaf would be nearer two shillings than nine-pence unless home production was doubled as compared with that before the war.

CHANGE IN ENGLAND

London, June 7.—In the House of Commons today, on the second reading of the agriculture bill, Sir Arthur Griffith-Boscawen, parliamentary secretary to the board of agriculture, pointed out that, before the war, Great Britain only produced enough wheat to suffice from Friday night to Monday morning.

"The rest of the week," he said, "we depended on foreign imports. We were agricultural week-enders."

Production had improved during the war, he said, and the Government was determined not to let agriculture slip back. It was undoubtedly cheaper to grow wheat in England at present than to import it.

"FARMERS' CHARTER"

Russia and Hungary were out of court. The whole question of the future was how Britain is to get its bread. The bill, Sir Arthur Griffith-Boscawen said, might be called the farmers' charter, but it was introduced in the national interest to make the best use of the nation's greatest national asset.

The keynote of the bill was security all round—security to the farmer by means of guaranteed prices; security to the laborer by a minimum wage; security to the State by giving it certain control of cultivation, so that the maximum amount of food might be produced.

Throngs Of Sinn Fein Sympathisers Storm Montjoy Prison In Dublin

A remarkable photograph taken just as a crowd of highly excited Sinn Fein sympathisers tried to rush the barbed wire barricade outside the Montjoy prison, Dublin, where several hundred Sinn Feiners are on a hunger strike. The British troops with fixed bayonets succeeded in keeping the crowd off. Several people were injured in the attempted rush.

FORM RATEPAYERS SOCIETY, SUGGESTS NINGPONESE GUILD

Says Advisors Should Be Elected By All Tax Payers In Shanghai

The formation of a Chinese Ratepayers' Association for the purpose of electing the five members of the Advisory Board to the Municipal Council was the suggestion advanced by the Ningpo Guild in its reply to the Chamber of Commerce, which had recently invited the commercial bodies to elect their men and refer the names to the chamber.

The reply was sent following a meeting of the members of the guild at which the invitation was thoroughly discussed. Mr. Yin Chi-fang moved that the election of the advisors should be open to all Chinese tax payers in Shanghai and no organisation should monopolise the privilege.

METHOD IS "VAGUE"

In his explanations, he said that the method of election as proposed by the chamber is vague. It called for the election of a number of members without specifying the figure. It did not state whether the chamber was going to select five among all the nominees submitted to it, or that all the nominees' names will be handed over to the Consular Body for final choice. Both methods however would be clumsy. His motion for the calling of a preliminary meeting of representatives of all organisations and institution in Shanghai with the view of organising a Chinese rate-payers Association was seconded and unanimously passed.

In the reply to the chamber, the guild was emphatic that it should invite all institutions and organisation who are tax payers and who may not be members of the chamber. The new organisation is to formulate plans for the general election of the five men.

Hongkong Okehs Own Government

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 7.—Replying to Captain Wedgwood Benn, Lieut.-Colonel Leslie Wilson, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Shipping, stated that an invitation to consider the practicability of Imperial preference had been sent to all the Colonies and Protectorates, except those precluded from so doing by international agreements or in which preference was already enforced or impracticable.

The replies, hitherto received, included replies from Hongkong and Sierra Leone, both of which considered preference unnecessary and from Cyprus where legislation had been passed in this sense. Mauritius was considering the question.

British Murderer Shot By Constables

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 7.—The audacious career of the ex-soldier, Toplis, who murdered a taxi-driver at Andover in April last and has since eluded pursuit all over the country, ended yesterday at Penrith.

He was surrounded by a police cordon and, during an exchange of revolver shots, was shot through the heart.

Toplis, in addition to the charge of murder, is accused of shootings in Scotland and numerous hold-ups.

Race Secretary Gets Three Months At Hard Labor

(Reuter's Service)

Hankow, June 8.—The Secretary of the Hankow Race Club has been sentenced to three months' hard labor.

As published in a recent issue of THE CHINA PRESS, W. N. Haigh, secretary of the Hankow Race Club, was accused of causing two sweepstake tickets, on the fifth and sixth races of the first extra off day of the spring meet, to be forged in order that he might illegally profit thereby.

The case was heard before Acting British Vice Consul F. A. Wallis, with A. V. Perry appearing for the race club and R. A. Frost for the accused.

JUSTICE TO IRISH, URGES PREMIER

Premier Tells Of Plans To Restore Order In 'Troubled Isle'

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 7.—Two more destroyers left Queenstown for the West Coast yesterday, conveying three hundred marines.

London, June 7.—In the House of Commons today, replying to Mr. T. Donald (Unionist-Labor), Mr. Lloyd George emphasised that the Government intended to take steps to bring to justice all persons associated with crime in Ireland.

The Government for this purpose had re-organised the Irish Executive, and was strengthening the police, naval and military forces in Ireland. It would probably also be necessary to strengthen the law for dealing with crime.

Mr. Lloyd George added that the Government intended to put down the present organised campaign of murder and assassination.

NEW SYSTEM WORKS

London, June 7.—The new system of military patrol in Ireland is apparently beginning to bear fruit, as a communique issued in Dublin says that the intervention of a military patrol frustrated an attack on the Constabulary barracks at Brosna, County Kerry. Six armed men in a motor-car containing arms and ammunition were captured.

A soldier in Tipperary today was fired on and wounded but no arrests were made.

A pilot at Queenstown refused to bring in a vessel conveying war munitions. The ship was berthed by the Harbor Master. The workers subsequently refused to unload the vessel which was accordingly placed under the protection of a guard of soldiers.

RESENT INTERFERENCE

Newhaven, Conn., June 5.—Sixty members of Yale University have sent a protest to Congress against any Congressional resolution or item of political program, touching the relations between Great Britain and Ireland.

The protest recalls the resentment, felt by the United States during the civil war of 1861-65, at foreign interference.

Washington, June 7.—The Secretary of State has apologised to the British Embassy for the burning of the British flag by feminine sympathisers with the Sinn Fein.

TEN YEARS TERM IS SENTENCE OF MATE'S SLAYER

Inspector Reeves Praised For Work On Ship Tragedy Case

Ten years imprisonment for manslaughter was the sentence imposed yesterday by the Mixed Court on a Chinese cook who stabbed to death Oswald Sheuan third mate of the s.s. Wallowra, when the ship was lying at the China Merchants' Central Wharf here May 10. British Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Tsang handed down the decision.

In their findings the Court said:

"We find the accused guilty of manslaughter and we sentence him to ten years imprisonment. We do not think that is excessive. We find he was drunk but not so drunk that he did not know what he was doing.

"We thank Inspector Reeves for the able manner in which he has conducted the prosecution."

Trial of the case occupied most of the day in the Mixed Court yesterday. Mr. R. C. Faithfull appeared for the police and Mr. W. O. Brockman, of the firm of Platt, Macleod and Wilson was directed by the Court to represent the defense.

The stabbing affray was the result of a quarrel, the origin of which was not discovered, between the cook and the officer when the latter stepped into the galley of the ship. The cook had just been paid off by the Chinese steward who had sent ashore for another man.

Independents Win In German Election

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, June 6.—The first provisional results of the elections show that in North Berlin the Majority Socialists polled 19,000 votes; the Independent Socialists 36,000; the Center 3,000; the People's Party 11,000; the National Party 10,000 and the Communists 1,000.

At Halle the Majority Socialists recorded 10,000 votes, the Independents 34,000 and the Democrats 13,000.

At Frankfort the figures were as follows: Majority Socialists, 21,000; Independents 13,000. The Majority Socialists are also leading at Offenbach and Nuremberg.

DERNBURG ELECTED

Berlin, June 7.—The members of the Reichstag so far elected include Democrats, Herr Dernburg and Dr. Haussmann, Majority Socialists, Herr Scheidemann, Herr Edbard Bernstein and the Minister Herr Bauer, Peoples Party, Dr. Helfferich, and Independent Socialists, Herr Ledebour. Herr Erzberger's election is regarded as assured. Count Bernstorff was defeated.

LEAGUE IN LONDON

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 7.—Replying to Lord Robert Cecil and Captain Wedgwood Benn, Mr. Lloyd George stated that a special meeting of the Council of the League of Nations would be held in London on June 14 on the application of the Persian Government to consider the situation, created by the Bolshevik occupation of Enzeli.

The Premier added that doubtless the opportunity would be taken to consider the dangers and difficulties of Central Europe.

ASKS WORLD FOR OPINION ON FAR EAST EMBROGLIO

Krasnoschekoff Sends Note To Powers, Requesting Verdict

JAPAN QUERIED

'Far Eastern Republic' Will Compromise If Necessary

WANTS PEACE

Says History Must Judge Merits Of The Case

(From "Dalta" News Agency)

Verhne-Udinsk, June 5.—Following is a memorandum addressed to General Oi; to the Japanese and American legations in Peking; to the Chinese Government; and to the Moscow Government:

"Japanese Ambassador, Peking.

"I have the honor of transmitting to you a copy of the memorandum which was submitted by me, as Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Far Eastern Republic, to General Marimoto Oi, commander-in-chief of the Japanese Expeditionary forces in the territory of the Far Eastern Republic, in connection with the peace parleys at Chita.

"In view of the important bearing these parleys may have upon the Far Eastern situation, may I ask you to consider the points at issue carefully and submit them to your Government, with my request to regard them in the light of my note and declaration of May 16, with a view to giving the Japanese commander instructions to open direct negotiations with our Government?

THOUSANDS MURDERED

"From the Pacific to Baikal Lake thousands of innocent people are being mercilessly slaughtered. Peasants are being compelled to leave their homes and fields; workers, their shops. Called to the Khabarovsk, Sretensk and Chita fronts, they have been scattered over the mountains and forest and driven into desperate positions.

"While peace negotiations have been going on in one place, ruthless war has been proceeding in the other. Lawless gangs of violators, driven from the Urals and the Baikal, and known as the remnants of the armies of Kappel, Kolchak and Annenkoff, have joined hands with the renowned Semenoff and have been enjoying the protection and good will of the Japanese Expeditionary Forces, continuing their lawless sway over the unhappy Transbaikal territory.

HOPES AROUSED

"The friendly tone and clear unmistakable statement of your declaration of May 11 have aroused hopes in the hearts of our people—tired of civil war and intervention—that peace and good will are at hand.

"Especially were we impressed by your open hearted statement that your Government had no territorial ambitions in Siberia, and that the Japanese command is scrupulous in manifesting its regard for the opinion of the Russian people and that it does not intend to defy their sentiments by rendering support to any particular persons.

"The latter assurance was most memorable, in view of the fact that the remnants of all armies of the Far East and those of Siberia—the scum of our population—have gathered in and about Chita.

HIT 'DEAD WALL'

"In our aspiration to unite all the Far Eastern provinces from Baikal Lake to the Pacific into an independent and democratic state, we have hit upon a dead wall around Chita that split our country into two parts, preventing us from disbanding the partisan detachments as well as from establishing law and order, which are so dear to the Japanese command and Government, according to your declaration.

"We were greatly satisfied when, on May 24, upon your order a peace Conference met at Gongota, near Chita. At the very beginning of the Conference, as the protocol clearly shows, it became obvious to both sides that there can be no talk about an armistice as there has never been any war between our regular People's army and the Japanese forces. Our Government has placed the burden of police duties upon its army.

Therefore, true to the letter and spirit of your declaration and solicitous of the safety of the Japanese forces, I have instructed our delegates to offer the well known conditions based upon the conditions offered by you and accepted by our Government in Vladivostok.

OFFER STANDS

"Such was and is our offer. In it our Government, temporarily renounces its sovereign rights upon a belt of our territory. We are ready to do this for the sake of peace and we were certain that our offer will meet with your heartiest approval.

How great was our surprise when your delegation refused to consider it on the pretext that it was not authorised to do so!

Our surprise turned into actual wonder when, after an interruption of two days, your delegation on June 1, flatly refused to consider this offer and made a counter offer to arrange for an armistice. Furthermore, your delegation also refused to consider the fronts at Sretensk where on their own admission, your military units, hand-in-hand with Semenoff's forces, were fighting our people; and refused even to allow our civil emissaries to pass through our territory.

UNCONDITIONAL SUBMISSION

"I am informed, and it is admitted by your delegation, that definite statements have already reached you with regard to the unconditional submission of the Amurian territory to our Government.

"How, then, may we explain this artificial wall, this refusal to discuss the two Amurian fronts at Khabarovsk and Sretensk? How must we understand the offer of this one-sided peace?

"In the course of discussion, as I can see from the stenographic report, the president of your delegation has clearly stated that there is no cause for quarrel between Semenoff and your Command, and that, 'from our point of view Semenoff has done no harm,' and that we (Japanese Command) cannot demand anything of him or ask him to retire from the railway as we have no quarrel with him.'

"How should we agree to all this in view of your declaration regarding non-interference and absolute neutrality and solemn promise not to render any support to any person or group against the freewill of the people?

SERIOUS MISUNDERSTANDING

"There must be a deep and serious misunderstanding about all this; and, in this solemn hour, when the fate of thousands of people is passed upon, when the eyes of both our people and the civilised world are turned upon our conference, in full consciousness of my responsibility, I have decided to put the case flatly before you, as the highest Commander.

"May I ask you, in the name of peace and justice; in the name of your people and our people who stand armed against each other upon the desolated and untilled fields of the Transbaikal and Amur provinces instead of working hand in hand upon the field of trade and industry, may I ask you to answer as plainly and conscientiously as you so admirably have done in your note of May 11, the following questions:

FIVE QUESTIONS

"1. Why not temporarily neutralise the part of the Transbaikal railway, above referred to as was the case with the Ussur Railway, leaving only Japanese forces on it, on condition of non-interference in Russian internal affairs?

"2. Why not give the people of Eastern Transbaikal a chance to decide their own form of government, without armed interference?

"3. Why not discontinue hostilities on all fronts of our Republic at once and stop bloodshed simultaneously?

"4. Why not open through railway and telegraphic communications within the territory of our Republic, for the benefit of both Russian and Japanese peoples and for the sake of fulfilment of your proposition?

"5. What stands in the way of our peace emissaries in their travel through our territory from Verhneudinsk to Sretensk and Vladivostok? And on what ground do the petty commanders at Chita refuse passage?

"An attentive perusal of your declaration of May 11, should give a positive answer to all those questions; and only the inexplicable conditions of affairs compels me to put this question before you and gives me hope that will take the trouble of responding to the satisfaction of all. Let there be peace in our land.

Bolshevik Gold Offer Considered In London

negotiations were now proceeding with M. Krassin.

WHEAT AVAILABLE

With regard to the available stocks in Russia, the Prime Minister states that the Poles confessed that there were considerable quantities of wheat for export in the Ukraine and Siberia. He did not doubt that there were grain, oil, flax, timber and other essential commodities in Russia.

Mr. Lloyd George went on to ridicule the argument that they could not trade with Russia because they disapproved of its Government or on account of atrocities. He pointed out that they at one time disapproved of the Government of México but they continued to trade with that country. They had not ceased to trade with Turkey on account of the massacre of Armenians. It was a new doctrine that people must approve the habits, customs and manners of a people before they could trade with them. To urge such a view now was gross folly.

RESTORE THE WORLD

They had to consider the whole situation, Mr. Lloyd George added. It appalled him to think what would happen unless they succeeded in restoring the world. The alternative policy was to say that they would kill Bolshevism, because it was an evil thing. That meant putting their strength and manhood into it. It would mean the loss of hundreds of thousands of men and an addition of thousands of millions to the national debt. He asked, "are you prepared to do that?"

London, June 7.—There was a second meeting between M. Krassin and British Ministers today, lasting two hours. M. Krassin gave various answer to Ministers inquiries regarding prisoners and propaganda, but there are other matters to be settled and a further meeting will probably be arranged. So far the general impression is satisfactory.

ACCIDENT TO SHAMROCK IV.

New York, June 7.—The yacht, Shamrock IV, challenger for the America's Cup, had a gaff carried away while she was undergoing a sail-testing today. She has gone to City Island for repairs.

chi, Tungli, Soochow and Nanwei. None came from Wusih and Changchow, two of the biggest supply centers.

By the Shanghai-Nanking Railway, about 40 carloads of rice reached Shanghai during the week from Pukow, Kiangpien and Chingkiang. Each load contains 350 piculs, totalling 15,000 piculs in all.

The steamers of Jardine, Matheson, Butterfield and Swire and China Merchants' were responsible in shipping over 30,000 piculs to Shanghai during that period. Most of the latter is now stored up in the godowns, awaiting delivery.

MORE CHEAP DEPOTS

As the result of the demand for more cheap exchanges, Magistrate Shen Pao-chang of the Shanghai City will open up two more tomorrow, one in Pootung and the other in Chapei. Besides raising a loan from one of the local Chinese banks for that purpose, contributions for the necessary funds are being taken.

The Tien Chuan Theater, corner of Nanking and Hoopeh Roads, will contribute the entire proceeds of three performances next week to the cause.

Small flare-ups were recorded yesterday in Pootung. A large number of poor women attempted to raid the Wan Hsin Rice shop by first bombarding it with bricks. Police were summoned and seven were arrested. The desperate women stormed the police headquarters and the authorities were obliged to release them after a warning.

STRIKES SETTLED

Girls in the weaving factories in Nantao went on strike yesterday. The dispute was settled later in the day when the employers agreed to raise wages by ten percent. The polish painters also secured their raise of eight cents per day yesterday and will resume their work this morning.

Meanwhile, the dispute over the 14 carloads of rice seized at the Fungkiang station on the Hangchow Railway, is still on.

The Kiangsu people want these to be distributed in Shanghai and the neighboring towns, while the Chekiang representatives insist that they should be sent back to Hangchow to be sold at reduced rates there.

Wordy battles are waged and the telegraphic lines are kept hot with messages to the military and civil administrations to give the required verdict.

JAPAN BUSY IN MANCHULI, SAYS REPORT

Reuter Correspondent Tells Of Game Played By Clever Nipponese

SEMENOFF AIDS THEM

Dictatorship Established In Transbaikal, And No Favors Shown

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 8.—The following is the fourth report Reuter's Agency has received of the actual conditions in the Manchuria Siberian zone. It is dated Manchuria station (Manchuli), May 25, and contains much valuable information:

"Owing to the disorganised state of the Transbaikal Railway and the fact that it is under military control, there is a general dislocation of trade and commerce at Manchuli, which has become quite an important place during the last few years.

"Manchuli station boasts of a number of railway tracks and sidings which serve the Chinese Eastern Railway and Transbaikal line jointly. Here the Japanese have a special military platform with warehouses alongside the railway lines where their commissariat is situated, the whole being surrounded by a wall and strongly guarded.

"It is impossible to estimate with any accuracy the amount of military stores held by the Japanese at Manchuli; for every day supplies arrive from the East whilst carloads are daily being despatched to Transbaikalia. Great secrecy is maintained as to the movements of both troops and stores and all the loading is done by the Japanese themselves who take every precaution that the Russian railway employes shall remain in the dark, their services being dispensed with entirely.

DISPLAY THEIR FLAG

"The Japanese flag is very much in evidence in the settlement itself, many of the most prominent and best buildings being occupied by the Japanese. They command all strategical points and the actual barracks of their troops are situated at different parts of the town. The Japanese have indeed worked out their plans so that they are in a position to occupy the entire town within a few minutes of receiving the word of command.

Owing to the recent withdrawal of various units which have been sent to Transbaikalia, the actual Japanese garrison is under 1,000 men. In addition to their telegraph line, going both eastwards and westwards, the Japanese have built their own radio station, and are in direct communication with Chita on the West, and with Harbin, Nikolsk, Haharovsk and Vladivostock on the East.

WIRELESS SYSTEM

"It is unnecessary here to comment on the important weapon possession of the wireless telegraph system puts into the hands of the Japanese in the Russian Far East as well as in Northern Manchuria, or on the advantages they possess through having such a system in proper working order and entirely under their control.

"Twenty versts east of Manchuli is Jalainor, where are situated the coal mines which supply the Chinese Eastern Railway with fuel from Manchuli to south of Tsitsihar. The coal is not of a good quality, being soft and smoky, but it serves the purpose. The output at the present moment is about 100 cars of 1,000 pound capacity daily, the mines employing over 1,000 workmen.

"Chinese soldiers guard the mines. With the exception of officers, the Semenoff force at Manchuli is now a negligible quantity, practically all the rank and file having been withdrawn from Manchurian territory. The number of Semenoff officers is very elastic, for daily some arrive and others depart.

"The stores and supplies that are now being brought from the different points to the East are being shipped away immediately on the Transbaikal Railway, for all Semenoff stores now go to the base at Dauria, where is to be found the commissariat.

TRAVEL EASIER.

"The attitude that was formerly maintained by Semenoff's unit towards the general traveling public at Manchuli has undoubtedly altered and the movements of passengers are no longer hampered as they used to be. In a word, the sway held by Semenoff at Manchuli but a few weeks ago has been considerably weakened, whilst that of the Japanese has been more than proportionately increased.

"Practically all the railway workers, as well as a goodly proportion of the local Russian residents, are very anti-Semenoff, which is wrongly interpreted by the Japanese as being Bolshevik.

"The only means of telegraphing open to the general public at Manchuli is by the Chinese Eastern telegraph lines, all telegrams being censored by a Semenoff officer, though really the latter has no right to do so, seeing the Chinese Eastern Railway is not under Semenoff's protection.

HIS MESSAGES CENSORED

"The writer, who wished to send a telegram about the burning of the Onon bridge, was told that his telegram could not be allowed to go because no official news had been received from Chita by the Semenoff representative on the subject.

"The company accepts any telegram that the public hands in, but there is no guarantee that the message will reach its destination, for it must pass the censor first.

"It is high time that the railway authorities stop this censorship inside their area of expropriation. Manchuli station is a passport point and all passengers arriving from the west are forced to show their papers and documents before they are permitted to leave the train."

New York Host Is 854,000 More Than In 1910

(Reuter's Service)

New York, June 7.—The latest census of the population of New York gives the total number of inhabitants at 5,621,000, an increase of only 854,000 since 1910, owing largely to the curtailment of immigration during the war.

MORE LIGHTERS SENT TO AID IN FLOATING SHIP

Pak Ling Still Aground But In No Danger Is News To Agents

Still aground on Button Island, in Bonham Straits about 60 miles south of Shanghai, the freighter Pak Ling, of the Blue Funnel Line, was reported to be in no danger last night. The typhoon which was seen as a possible menace to the vessel has altered its course, it is believed, and although at no time was there any fear for the personal safety of the crew relief was felt that there is no likelihood of there being property loss of any considerable extent.

More lighters were dispatched to the scene of the wreck yesterday from Shanghai by Butterfield and Swire, agents for the Blue Funnel line. The rescue party has been reprovisioned and everything looking towards the salving of the ship is going forward satisfactorily. It was expected that she would be floated on yesterday morning's high tide but this proved impossible. It is considered likely that she will be afloat today or tomorrow.

The Engineering Society Of China

The annual general meeting of the Engineering Society of China took place on Tuesday afternoon at 5:30 p.m. being held at the Royal Asiatic Society's rooms, 5 Museum Road. A representative gathering of the membership of the Society was present, and the chair was taken by the President, Mr. A. P. Wood. In presenting the Annual Report, Mr. Wood said that the present state of the membership of the Society is as follows:

Hon. Members, 4; members, 220; Hon. associates, 15; Students, 3; making a total membership of all grades of 242.

Mr. Wood referred to the loss sustained by the Society in the death of Mr. Launing who was an hon. associate for many years. The President went on to say that he regretted that he was unable to commence with the customary phrase to the effect that the report and accounts had been available for some time, inasmuch as they were only sent out a day or two ago, the delay being in a great measure due to the unsuccessful efforts of the Treasurer, Mr. I. Tuxford, to collect outstanding subscriptions before closing the accounts.

Reference was made to the large number of subscriptions still remaining unpaid, and the membership was requested to give this matter its attention. Mr. Wood proceeded to refer to the encouraging nature of the interest taken in the society's affairs by outport members as evidenced by their contributions of papers, and the thanks of the Society were accorded to Messrs. H. Von Heidenstam, H. Chatley, W. O. Leach, and W. Cockburn, for papers contributed by those gentlemen during the past session.

The President expressed a hope that members would make a special endeavor during the coming session to provide papers of engineering interest. Reference was made to the library, and thanks accorded to Mr. P. H. Cole for the time and trouble spent in its upkeep. The President referred to the achievement of one of their past Presidents, Mr. John Prentice, in having completed 50 years of service in engineering in China during the past session.

Mr. Wood concluded the report by extending the Society's thanks to the Hon. Sec., Mr. C. S. Taylor, and the Hon. Treasurer, Mr. I. Tuxford, for the large amount of work which they have been called upon to carry out during the past year.

At the conclusion of the report, a ballot was held in respect of the nominations for members of the Council during the coming session, and as a result the following officers and members of Council were elected.

President, Mr. H. H. Arnold; Vice Presidents, Messrs. C. Harper, I. Tuxford and A. W. Brankston; Council, Messrs. F. B. Pitcairn, E. T. Forestier, E. C. Stocker, F. G. Payne, C. Luthy, M. H. Logan, G. S. Aveyard and P. M. Scot.

A hearty vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. F. O. Reynolds, and seconded by Mr. C. Harper in connection with services rendered to the Society by Mr. A. P. Wood during his term of Presidency, and at the close of the meeting the members of the Society were invited by Mr. Wood to visit the Waterworks on Friday, the 18th.

PEKING AWAITING OUTCOME OF ACTS OF WANG YI-TANG

Political Interest Focussed On Movement Of Troops Of Wu Pei-fu

GOVERNMENT IS HARD UP

Indications Are Anfu Club Is Marshaling Forces For Gathering Storm

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 9.—The political situation continues to center around Wang Yi-tang's mission in Shanghai, while the movements of General Wu Pei-fu's troops are being made a political issue in Peking.

In connection with the latter's movements the wildest rumors are being spread. The Anfu party is hinting at drastic action in the event of General Wu Pei-fu's troops arriving at Paotingfu, while the opponents of the club are holding out threats of combined action on the part of Generals Tsao Kun and Chang Tso-lin, if armed opposition is offered to General Wu.

ARRAYING FORCES

The facts appear to be that the Anfu Club is arraying all its resources, political, financial and military, in a challenging line and is thus making a last political stand, if Wang Yi-tang succeeds, the club will secure increased power; but, otherwise, it will be practically down and out.

The Government, however, has made considerable progress in negotiations with Canton and is disinclined to throw over Canton at the instance of the club.

Thus the split in the South is reflected in a political division in the North, due to political maneuverings which are largely froth.

NO CAUSE TO FEAR

There is certainly as yet no cause for dire forebodings and no justification for the wild rumors of impending strife. All but the extremists are strongly supporting the President, who continues calmly to work in the best interests of the country and is apparently steadily gathering strength.

Financially the situation is embarrassing, inasmuch as the Dragon Boat festival necessitates a general settlement of accounts. The local banks, however, are providing $3,500,000 in exchange for treasury bills, backed by the customs and salt revenue surpluses, while $2,000,000 is being raised from the same sources, secured on wine and tobacco revenues and an additional $5,000,000 is being received from the salt and customs revenues prior to June 20. This will tide over the festival period.

CHINESE GOING TO MANILA TO LEARN TO FLY

Is Part Of Project Of Navy To Establish Department Of Aeronautics

Five Chinese naval officers are to go to Manila to study aviation at the Curtiss school, according to reports circulated in Shanghai last night when it became known that a telegram had been sent from Peking asking reservations for the men on the Empress of Asia, which is to sail for the Philippines on June 17.

That the students are being sent to the aviation school is taken as partial verification of the recent reports that the Peking government has ordered hydroplanes costing $250,000 and has negotiated credit with the Curtiss company for the navy department.

Major J. E. Hamilton Stevenot, official Far Eastern Representative of the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Corporation, arrived in Shanghai yesterday after having spent a month in conference with the Chinese officials but said that it was impossible for him to discuss the matter at this time. He expects to be here for several days and it is reported that he may obtain permission to make some announcement as to the outcome of his dealings at Peking before his departure.

If it is true that the hydroplanes mentioned have been ordered and that an extensive credit for more ships has been extended it will mark the foundation of an aviation department for the Navy just as the recent Vickers, Ltd., contract did for the Army.

It is said that the Ministry of the Navy believes that the airplane program will have a strong influence in bringing back the rebel fleet to allegiance.

MAJOR TRUEMAN IN FINAL TALK TO VOLUNTEERS

Late Commanding Officer Of S.V.C. Issues Special Order Of The Day

In a "Special Order of the Day," Major Trueman, late commanding officer of the S.V.C., has issued a final word to the men of the Corps expressing his appreciation of their efforts and urging that the new commandant be accorded the same treatment that it has been his pleasure to receive. The Order reads:

"Upon relinquishing command of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps, I wish to convey to all officers, warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men a very deep sense of the loyal co-operation, and ready and willing response to calls of active duty, which I have received from them during the past five years.

ALWAYS PLAY THE GAME

"When Lt.-Col. Bray was recalled in 1915 for service with his own regiment, I took over his duties in the Corps with a feeling of great responsibility, only tempered with the knowledge born of long experience that this Corps would meet any emergency and always play the game. Now, after a period of five years and two months, I can look with a feeling of pride and pleasure that my belief has been more than justified.

"I wish particularly to express my thanks to the older men who, after having done their share, rejoined the ranks again to fill the gaps made by the younger men who volunteered for the 'Greater Service.'

"The Corps, or part of it, was called out for active duty in 1915, 1916, 1918 and 1919, and often performed irksome and tedious duties with efficiency and thoroughness worthy of the highest praise. On these occasions I received the utmost assistance from all ranks, and often at great personal inconvenience to them.

"To the Members of the Headquarters Staff, Volunteer and Permanent, I owe a very great deal. At any time I could rely upon their help to carry out the hundred and one things which are summed up in the word "administration," and I gladly acknowledge the valuable suggestions and wise counsels I have received from time to time.

UNIT AND INDIVIDUAL

"That there have been some cases of misunderstanding which have led to friction, need not be a matter for surprise in a Corps of this size, nevertheless it is to me a great regret. It is not easy to focus various view points on to one objective, unless the eye is raised above the immediate foreground of each. My endeavor has always been, when confronted with a problem upon which a decision was required, to take the broader view of what is best for the Corps, and try to adapt to that the requirements of the Unit and the individual.

"The Corps has maintained its standard of efficiency, and its condition today is better than ever before, largely due to the number of officers and men who have rejoined its ranks after gaining honor and distinction on the various battle fronts in the great war.

"In handing over the Command to Lieut.-Colonel Marr Johnson, I need not ask that the same support will be given to him as to his predecessors, but rather would I, on behalf of the Corps, assure him that he can place his confidence in the Corps in any emergency or call to duty.

"It has been my proud privilege to serve through all ranks, and finally to command the Corps. My heart will always be with it and though no longer Commandant, I hope for many years more to enjoy the friendships formed during the long years of service therein."

Marie Tempest Tonight

Booking has been heavy and it seems certain that Marie Tempest and her players will be given an enthusiastic welcome when they appear tonight at the Lyceum theater in the first of a two nights farewell engagement in Shanghai.

Play-goers will be disappointed to hear that the company will be unable to give the advertised performance on Saturday night. The steamer Chenan which is taking the company to Hongkong and Manila is sailing on Saturday morning, so it was found necessary to cancel the final performance.

The opening bill "The Marriage of Kitty" is one of the best from among the many Tempest successes and every theatergoer who missed the play upon the occasion of the former visit of the players here should make an effort to be present this evening. Tomorrow the bill will be the "Duke of Killicrankie."

The fifteen members of the Tempest company arrived in Shanghai yesterday morning from Tungchow on the s.s. Kutwo.

Mr. F. K. Barrett, who is widely known in Pacific ports as a ship's officer, having been in trans-Pacific passenger service for the past five years is taking over the agency of the China Mail as successor to Mr. I. P. Williams, whose early departure is generally regretted in Shanghai shipping circles. Mr. Williams leaves to assume a post in the company's San Francisco office.

Mr. Barrett formerly was in the service of the Pacific Mail and was purser on the Venezuela. More recently he has been purser on the China Mail liner Nanking. Mr. Williams will sail for the United States on the steamer Nile, which sails on June 22.

NO WAR-WEALTH LEVY

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 7.—In the House of Commons today, in reply to a question, Mr. Austen Chamberlain stated that, after carefully considering the suggested scheme for a levy on war wealth in the report of the Committee on War Wealth, the Government had concluded that the dangers of such a levy altogether outweighed the advantages and therefore had decided not to take the proposals in that sense.

3 KEEGAN'S INTERNATIONAL THREE LETTER CODE 3

Before its general use, Keegan's International Three Letter Code was tested by an internationally-known firm, with the result that they effected a saving of 33 1/3% on all cable messages.

The code is divided into six parts, viz: General conversation (divided into two sections); Lumber code; Broker's Code; Oil Code; Steel and Machinery. There is also a special code of 3,500 blank spaces for private use of firms whose requirements are not completely met by the foregoing.

The simplicity of the system obviates the necessity for an expert codist, and will commend itself to all who find code work irksome.

'Woman Triumphant,' A New Ibanez

Into the second division of the works of Vicente Blasco Ibanez, back of that first line held indomitably by "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and "Mare Nostrum," there slips comfortably "La Maja Desnuda," published by Dutton, in translation by Hayward Keniston, under the title "Woman Triumphant."

More closely in this book than in its predecessors Ibanez confines himself to the study of an individual. In "Blood and Sand" we had the life of the arena; in "Fruit of the Vine," the life of the grape-grower and wine-maker. In "Woman Triumphant" the principal figure is an artist of renown, but the story is not of the life artistic. What is presented to our interest is the origin and rise of Mariano Renovales; the pure love marriage of our painter to a girl above his social rank; the undermining of Mariano's devotion by the narrow jealousies and pruderies of a Josephina turned sickly; the long struggle between the artist and a titled temptress which ends in surrender and bitterness for the former master of the brush.

Renovales is the son of a blacksmith. His birth has taken place to the very sound of the hammers at the forge. A sturdy boy, he has grown into a man tall and superbly athletic. His gift has been of slow development. And at the height of his career he is without entanglement in sex. His passion is for art. He contemplates the nude with the sole thought of how he may reproduce its beauties on canvas. An object of his adoration as an artist, is the painting by Goya the name of which is employed as the Spanish title of our book. Sadly it comes about that Mariano's own wife, to whom he is long and pathetically loyal, imparts the final impulse which sends him to the arms of Concha, the Countess of Alberca, a real vampire of Madrid.

In "Woman Triumphant," both the erudition of Ibanez and his marvellous understanding of the human temperament are once more in evidence. The book will command readily the interest of that great following in English which has been won by earlier translations of his novels. It is true, nevertheless, that in this work faults of loose writing or undue expansion, reveal themselves which in other books from the same pen were either negligible or skilfully covered in translation. Of the many fine pages in the book, perhaps none will strike more deeply into the reader's appreciation than those which tell how Renovales, after his wife's death, is soul-haunted by her face of dreams, evolved out of the countless portraits of her which he painted in his early years of love.

In the final chapters Josephina, who has been by turns Mariano's love and the plague of his art, prevails as the source of his aberration.

'PETER JAMESON,' BY GILBERT FRANKAU

Gilbert Frankau studies at full narrative length, in "Peter Jameson" (Alfred A. Knopf), the reaction upon a London business man of a rather shaking experience with the dreadful business of war. The theme of his book is at this date, of course, far from new. He explains in a brief note that his elaboration of characters and plot extended over a period of seven years, beginning in 1912. Events have modified his work constantly, and to this fact may be due something of that sense of aliveness which impresses the reader to an extraordinary degree.

Peter Jameson is a young man still when the war breaks out. But he is a settled young man, to whom married life and fatherhood have become matters of course. Whatever of romance enters his life is associated with the launching of fresh ventures in commercial lines—in the making and merchandising of cigars and cigarettes. He goes into war as so many real Britons went, and knows no moment of slacking. When he emerges, made unfit for further service, his business has fallen away from him, but he does not care. Through a psychologic zone of the Great Fear he passes into a new land of Romance, where he is again in love with Patricia, his wife, and where the soil beyond Henley calls him instead of the stir of London.

Mr. Frankau denies having written a book of war. And it is true that while we read whole chapters of detail at the horrid front, it is Peter Jameson that fills our eye and thought, with camp and battle scenes figuring only as essential backgrounds. This is the triumph of our author's art in carrying out his purpose of a personal application of the processes of war.

Having said something of Peter Jameson, we should like to say as much of Patricia. Yet, in a volume, no fuller tribute could be paid than in writing simply that, as she passes through Mr. Frankau's pages, she is in loyalty, tenderness and grace the ideal mate of the man her Peter gets to be.

A GROUP OF MYSTERY TALES, BY VARIOUS AUTHORS

Lovers of mystery tales are well provided for in the lists of current fiction, and in at least one of them, "The Secret of the Silver Car," (Moffat, Yard and Co.), by Wyndham Martyn, an old acquaintance reappears. In this book Anthony Trent, master criminal and good soldier of the late war, is turned by love from his old paths after he has rendered an international service by defeating a plot for the throne of Hungary. In "The Red Seal," (Appleton), Natalie Sumner Lincoln tells the murder story of Jimmie Turnbull, who, caught masquerading as a burglar in the house of the girl he loves, in washington, drops dead in the police court pen. "Gray Dusk," by Octavus Roy Cohen, (Dodd, Mead and Co.), is the tale of the strange murder of Mary Forrest, a young bride on her honeymoon stay in South Carolina. "The La Chance Mine Mystery," by S. Carleton, (Little, Brown and Co.), involves murder, a conspiracy to steal a gold mine in Western Canada, and the solution of a famous jewel robbery case on Long Island. And such a clever and pretty young heroine! In "The Mystery of the Silver Dagger," by Randall Parrish, (Doran) a man is stabbed to death in the dark in Jersey City and the heroine's hatpin is the weapon used; but also a German South American conspiracy, hatched in New York, is thwarted. "The Skeleton Key," the last story written by the late Bernard Capes, (Doran) is a tale of half-brothers, in England, and of how murder comes of a conspiracy to steal a birthright. In "The Melwood Mystery," by James Hay jr., (Dodd, Mead and Co.), we have the story of how death came mysteriously to a beautiful woman spy for Germany, in Washington, and of how the crime was traced to a jealous fellow worker." The Scarred Chin," by Will Payne, (Dodd, Mead and Co.) deals with the rise, progress and end of a blackmailing enterprise, founded upon an old murder case in the Middle West. A story of mystery, brotherly devotion and a travelling gambler of the early American school.

'OH, YOU TEX!' BY WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE

When they call out "Oh, You Tex!" as in William MacLeod Raine's new book of that title (Houghton-Mifflin Company), they are talking to Jack Roberts, a young Texas Ranger riding in those days, about Civil War time, when buffaloes and warring Apaches still ranged our wide American plains and it was as important for a cowboy to be able to handle his gun as ride his pony. Mr. Raine has done well to place his tale in those old days. It gives him more room for thrills and gun-play, besides affording an atmosphere which is in its own way historic. Jack Roberts rides and loves and shoots when he has to, in the pages before us, and he is presented so vividly that he seems ready to live. "Oh, You Tex!" is a truly fine story of bad men, a loyal Ranger and a girl who is worth all of Jack Roberts's trouble.

'THE SHADOW.' BY MARY WHITE OVINGTON

Many and, we believe, indigenous to Fictionland are the adventures of Hertha Ogilvie as recounted in "The Shadow" (Harcourt, Brace and Howe), by Mary White Ovington. Hertha is born of a sinister romance in a Florida mansion and, for her mother's good name, is left by stealth in a negro cabin. She grows up in kindly black hands. Learning her name and identity through her grandfather's will, she goes to New York to start her new life away from old scenes. Her Northern experiences include sweatshop labor, a strike and a small race riot. Finally she goes back South, called by her dying old mammy, and after a fleeting moment of despair finds love and her right place in her own world. "The Shadow" has the interest of its improbability and of its realistic picturebits of life among the negroes, where it has been touched by ambition and education.

'WHERE ANGELS FEAR TO TREAD' BY E. M. FORSTER

We read on page 48 of E. M. Forster's "Where Angels Fear to Tread" (Knopf) of spaghetti as a first aid to the tender passion. Signor Gino Carella, son of the dentist at Monteriano, eats that well favored Italian dish and "when those delicious slippery worms were flying down his throat," his face, relaxed and calm, became the face seen and loved uncounted times in Italy, the face which "was not merely beautiful but had the charm which is the rightful heritage of all who are born on that soil."

Seeing Gino under the beautifying spaghetti influence, Philip Herriton, having sped post-haste to undertake the rescue of his widowed sister-in-law, understands how it is that Lilia has fallen to the spell of Carella and has entered into a bethrothal not only alien but utterly foreign to the notions of her determined British relatives by marriage. Lilia, it is true, is not of a certain staunchness of intellect. It is held by his people that her late husband has married beneath the family expectation. Still, the Herritons would have saved her from an Italian alliance had not Philip arrived too late at Monteriano.

The rest of the story is the tragedy of Lilia and her Carella baby, mingled with a character survey of Gino and his native associates as they are in contrast with a stubborn British tribe. There are points of humor, of understanding and of an interracial sympathy about Mr. Forster's work, but we finish his pages with a feeling of something insufficient to a possible purpose.

Keegan's Code

Keegan's International Three Word Code is a revelation in utility and simplicity. By a check letter system, it is possible for the decoder to ascertain whether the cable has been transmitted properly or not. Cable experts agree that this feature, although one of many, is not duplicated in any other existing code.

The saving of 33 1-3 percent which is claimed for the code, and is substantiated by unsolicited testimonials, means a very great saving to a firm whose monthly cable tolls run into thousands.

Those interested would do well to accept the offer of the Chinese American Publishing Co., as detailed on this page.

Clarke's Blood Mixture

The World's Best Blood Purifier.

FULL-BLOODED PEOPLE.

Why Other People Like Them

We can all call to mind men and women who give such a sense of vitality and strength that they are bound to get on. A woman of this type—full-blooded, plump and brighteyed—always has a group of admirers round her. A man of the same kind always gets his own way.

The reason is that there is a natural and wholesome tendency in all of us to appreciate health and healthy people—those with vigorous red blood in their veins, instead of thin watery bloodlessness. Often we remark that we envy them their vitality and keen interest in the affair of life.

There is no need for envy if the bloodless delicate ones will pay attention to health and make good their deficiency of blood. There is sound advice in the suggestion that all such ailing men and women should begin without delay a course of Dr. Williams' pink pills for pale people, for the reason that these pills make the good red blood of health and give the high spirits, energy and attraction that go with it. If you are pale, anæmic and nervous now, these pills pull you up. The first promising sign will be a natural healthy appetite, then the headaches, feeling of weariness and aching in the limbs will disappear, and your nerves will become steady.

Now is the time to begin Dr. Williams' pink pills. Get a supply from any dealer, or direct and post free one bottle for $1.50, six for $8.00, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

Senawang Estates Holds Shareholders' Meeting

The fourteenth ordinary general meeting of the Senawang Rubber Estates Company Ltd. was held yesterday afternoon at 7 Szechuen Road. Mr. G. Grayrigge presided as Chairman of the Board of Directors and the others present were Messrs. E. T. Byrne, A. K. Craddock, and E. S. Kadoorie. The report of the Chairman was as follows:

Since I last addressed you the Board of Directors has undergone some changes. I have to record with deep sorrow the death of Mr. C. W. Wrightson who had served on this Board since 1915. The vacancy has been filled by Mr. A. K. Craddock whose appointment I shall later on ask you to confirm. Mr. R. H. Parker I regret to say resigned his seat last March owing to pressure of business. We have decided for the present to continue with four directors.

The report and statement of accounts have been in your hands for some days and no doubt you are all well acquainted with the facts therein submitted.

The average selling price of our rubber was much better than last year, but owing to the incidence of disease which reduced our crop from an estimate of 425,000 lbs. to 266,361 lbs.—a loss of 158,639 lbs. or about 37½ percent—the company's year closed with a small adverse balance.

I am only too grateful we do not show a worse result.

We carried forward from last year Tls. 26,254.72 and after deducting from this the loss on this year, viz: Tls. 425.05, the directors recommend disposing of the balance Tls. 25,829.67 as follows:

	Tls.
Write off plant and machinery account	945.14
To write off development account	15,705.54
And carry forward to next year's account	9,178.99
	Tls. 25,829.67

A resolution to this effect will be proposed later on.

The amounts written off are not represented by cash or liquid assets. They are sums that have been necessarily spent on the estate and will never become available for dividend. The amount carried forward represents the actual amount of liquid assets at the close of the past fiscal year.

The balance sheet is made up in the usual manner and shows that the amounts written off since the inception of the company including these recommended today total $314,892.31 a figure almost equal to our capital.

The tendency of exchange during the greater part of the year continued further against us. For the purpose of comparison I mention the figures of the past five years:

Years	Average	Final
1919-20	40⅛	28¾
1918-19	48¼	45⅞
1917-18	59⅛	53⅞
1916-17	77¼	65
1915-16	100	89

But despite exchange we should have been able to pay a comfortable dividend had it not been for the attack of mouldy rot. Those who follow annual reports will have seen mention of this disease since 1916 under the name of bark canker and later mouldy rot, in fact, the disease has been with us since 1914 though it was not then identified. We had it reported on by mycologists and others from time to time but it was never considered serious and it seemed to come and go without doing any particular harm. Last year we had to take decisive steps as the disease was spreading fast and acting on the advice of the best experts available; a policy of resting the older areas, cutting out 120 acres—later reduced to 88 acres—and drastic thinning out, was instituted at great expense and also lessened revenue, which accounts for the 19.66d. stated as cost of production. This figure is nothing to go by as it includes all the extraordinary expense I have just mentioned.

For current year this extraordinary expense will be put into a special account and we shall then be able to show you something nearer to our true cost of production. The history of the past year may be summed up in the words 'mouldy rot." The gross expenditurb of the Estate was estimated at Straits $181,747, whereas we had to spend over Straits $232,000, and income as I told you before estimated at 425,000 lbs. became actually only 266,361 lbs. We got hit both ways, increased expenditure and lessened income.

I am thankful to say the progress of the disease has been checked, except for a recurrence in Field No. 19 last month, and I think we shall lose only 88 acres, which are now being replanted—instead of 120 acres as at first anticipated.

Part of the rested areas are now being tapped and the remainder according to a wire received last week should be in tapping shortly. This same wire increases the estimate for the current year from 212,000 to 230/240,000 lbs. Thus I am hopeful that the setback caused by this mouldy rot may soon be a thing of the past and that we can look forward to a more prosperous and less trying period than last year proved to be.

Other points of interest are dealt with in the report and need no recapitulation.

To comply with the New Order in Council the General Managership and Secretaryship of the Company were transferred to Messrs. J. A. Wattie and Co., Ltd.

I now beg to propose Resolution No. 1 viz:

That the Directors' Report and Statement of Accounts for the year ended January 31, 1920, and the disposal of the balance at credit of Profit and Loss Account, as recommended, be adopted and passed.

The Resolution is before the meeting and is open to discussion.

The following resolutions were adopted without discussions:

That the Directors' Report and Statement of Accounts for the year ended January 31, 1920, and the disposal of the balance at credit of Profit and Loss Account as recommended, be adopted and passed.

That the election of Mr. A. K. Craddock as a Director of the Company be confirmed.

That Mr. E. S. Kadoorie be re-elected a Director of the Company.

That Messrs. Lowe, Bingham and Matthews be reelected Auditors of the Company for the ensuing year at a fee of Tls. 400 for auditing the Books of the Company at Shanghai and Singapore.

There were 23,916 shares represented.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.
Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy and retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."
J. E. SIMPSON, M. D., Chicago, Ill.

"Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, and always obtain the desired result."
F. GERALD BLATTNER, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

"A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is deserves the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere."
J. S. ALEXANDER, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have prescribed Castoria to families for several years. It is all right. Mothers like it, for children will take it without any trouble."
C. A. WILSON, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"Have used your Castoria on various occasions in suitable cases and have found it a palatable and efficient laxative, especially in the various diseases of childhood."
CHAS. EDWARD GARDINER, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."
J. A. BOARMAN, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

NOTICE

In view of the low rate of wages received by the local polishers and in view of the high cost of living caused by the rise in the price of rice and other foods, applications were filed with the employers for permission to increase their wages. A meeting was held consequently by the representatives of the members of Polishers' Guild and Contractors Guild in the city and it was decided to give the polishers a daily increase of eight cents for those not taking meals in their employers' shops and six cents for those who do. As a matter of record this notice is inserted in the press.

Trade With Russia

TELEGRAMS from London impart the impression that the mission of M. Krassin promises to be crowned with success. M. Krassin is primarily in London to establish trade connections between great Britain and Soviet Russia. He is jingling some millions of gold roubles and besides is reputed to have behind him vast stocks of raw materials, which Russia is willing to exchange for machinery and manufactured goods.

On the face of it there is no intelligible reason why business should not proceed. But some opposition has developed in the British Parliament, as was, perhaps, to be expected. Col. John Gretton (Conservative) deplored resumption of trade, recalling the Russian atrocities and declaring that the Russian gold was stolen gold belonging to one or another of the Allies. This is a far-fetched argument, for although Russia owes money to the Allies, the gold that the Bolsheviki have belonged to Russia and became theirs by inheritance when the country turned Bolshevist.

Premier Lloyd George's reply, however, left the conscience-stricken Colonel Gretton with his powder all wet. The Premier started off by saying that the decision to trade with Russia had been taken at a meeting in Paris with M. Clemenceau in the chair. All the Allies represented at the meeting came to a unanimous decision that it was desirable to open these trade relations. Further, the San Remo conference by resolution declared its willingness to discuss the matter with M. Krassin.

Mr. Lloyd George was particularly happy in his argument that the Allies could not refuse to trade with Russia because of past atrocities. "It was a new doctrine that people must approve the habits, customs and manners of people before they could trade with them." They had not ceased to trade with Turkey because of the Armenian massacres. The Premier did not mention Germany, but that probably was an oversight. Col Gretton must have been aware that the British, French, Americans et al., were trading with Germany and Turkey.

As a matter of fact the Colonel is against Bolshevism and was hitting at that political "what-is-it?" rather than at atrocities. And when the Premier pointed out to him that he either had to live with Bolshevism or to crush it, which latter undertaking would mean the loss of hundreds of thousands of men and a new war debt of thousands of millions—and asked "Are you prepared for that?" the Colonel had no reply.

Meantime, the British ministers have held two meetings with M. Krassin, "and the general impression is satisfactory." This should be welcome news to our tenacious local holders of Romanoff and Kerensky roubles. Those who have plunged in Siberian roubles will not profit. They are to get, providing the cables' arrangement goes through, one "American" rouble for every 100 Siberian roubles they may turn in. These new roubles are reported to be backed by a reserve of 71,000,000 gold roubles and they are referred to as "American," because an American firm is printing them. The report is that only 150,000,000 of them are being issued. That would redeem about fifteen billion Siberian roubles at the rate fixed. Enough for quite a bonfire.

The Treaty of Versailles has been described as "an arrangement for keeping the people of Germany in permanent subjection and denying independence to the Russian people." It is being revised and re-written almost daily.

ALLAN RYAN ON WALL STREET

Calls It An Automatic Alarm, The Exchange An Irresponsible Club, Stock Raiders Squealers When They're Licked, And All Get-Rich-Quick Men Fools

Allan A. Ryan, central figure in the most sensational corner Wall Street has seen in many a year, gives some very good general business advice in the following interview. Stutz motor shares were slopping along at quotations of from 126 to 130 when the bears attempted to raid it. That was along in March. On April 28 they settled with Ryan at $500 per share. The Stock Exchange came off very badly in the deal and the bears, who squealed when caught, worse. Here's what Ryan had to say about it on April 18, before he had finally won out:

BY ROWLAND THOMAS
(New York World)

"What I don't like," said Allan Ryan to me, "is the way some of the papers have given the impression that this is a throat-cutting bee between two groups of speculators. It hasn't been that at all, on my part. It's been a fight to protect a tangible piece of property I believe in. I'm not and never have been a stock jobber. Buying production, organising it, developing it and putting it on a foolproof financial foundation is my business. Buying and improving production—that's my work. And my work and my home are the only things in the world I care for, and if the stock-trading element in Wall Street keeps its hands off me and my stockholders I won't trouble it. It doesn't interest me.

"I know I went into Wall Street early," he added, "and most of my life I've been a member of the Exchange. But I only went there because I had to have money for the things I wanted to do. And you can make more money with less brains in less time executing, buying and selling orders on commission than in any other way. A child could do it. It's so easy, it's distasteful. Why, the average broker has such a narrow vision he can't see past his own nose. Take this last business. The very fact that they would walk into such a mess is a good fair show-down of the amount of sense they use."

He was referring to the most exciting episode in recent Wall Street history—the open warfare between himself and the Board of Governors who control the actions of that supposedly all powerful institution, the New York Stock Exchange. Here is the story in a nutshell, as Mr. Ryan sees it and has stated it:

Certain New York Stock Exchange members—including, he charges, some of the governors—and their clients started a joy ride on the securities of his Stutz Motor Car Company, selling shares short, with the idea, possibly, of securing control, or at any rate realising largely on the manipulation. Instead, they found themselves squeezed in an unbreakable corner, facing a loss of many millions. By the code of the Street, they should have taken this loss and settled their contracts. But they did not. First, and of its own motion, the Board of Governors broke all precedent by interfering in a corner. They suspended all trading in Stutz till further notice. This action not only helped the "shorts"—some of whom, Mr. Ryan charges, as members of the governing body voted on the ruling—by relieving them indefinitely of the obligation to deliver the stock they had contracted to deliver, but also, by destroying the negotiable value, the moratorium deprived him of the use of the very large sums of money he had invested in its purchase.

Second, the disillusioned raiders formed a protective committee, engaged counsel and announced their intention of seeking relief from their contracts in the courts, thus violating precedent for a second time. It has always been an unwritten law that disputes between members must be settled inside the Exchange. To seek escape by going outside has, till this one instance, constituted the unspeakable offense of "welching" on an adverse contract. In the eyes of Mr. Ryan, it still was just that, and "welching" aided and abetted by the very governing body which had always been the first to frown on the mere suspicion of it.

Allan Ryan, by temperament and training, is averse to personal publicity theatricals and the blare of trumpets. But also by nature he is an open-air, give-and-take fighter, and from the moment on Wednesday afternoon, March 31, when his stock was suspended by what he considered a packed jury he fought his fight out in the open, where not only Wall Street but the whole public could see it. So you doubtless are familiar with its various stages—how next day he defied the ruling of the governors by advertising in all the New York papers that his firm would buy Stutz stock, how he continued the defiance by publicly offering the governors terms of settlement for the Stutz "shorts" which were an ultimatum and how last Tuesday afternoon he brought the situation to a dramatic climax by his resignation, picking up his seat in the proudest and richest security market in the world and flinging it back to the governors with the contemptuous explanation that he could no longer retain his membership and a satisfactory sense of self-respect.

"So long," ran the pungent closing paragraph of his letter, "as your body (the Board of Governors) is responsible only to itself, and so long as you can make your own rules and regulations for their immediate execution as you may deem the exigencies of the situation require, and so long as you permit men who have a personal, financial interest at stake to take part in your deliberations, your judgments and your decisions, I cannot escape the feeling that your system is unjust and that, greatly as I respect your institution with its traditions and its important place in the commerce of our country, I cannot with self-respect longer continue as a member. Accordingly, I request that my seat be sold without delay."

Such actions are the actions of an unusually bold and independent man, a strong man, a natural leader of less self-reliant natures. We all of us have a lot of self-respect, of course, but Allan Ryan has decided to pay an annual tax of $400,000 on his—which is roughly what being an outsider is going to cost him every year in commissions and the like. Into the merits of his controversy with the governors of the New York Stock Exchange this is no place to go. But his conduct in this fight, whatever may be its issue, he has made himself a figure of more than passing interest and importance. Not only will he go down into stock-market legend as the dramatic hero in one of the historic crises—and, when you come to think of it, mighty few men have been forceful enough to gouge themselves niches in the Hall of Fame of changeful Wall Street—but he also looms unique among his fellows of the present. He is par excellence the lone-wolf fighter of today. How much of this pre-eminence is due to his own characteristics, how much to the mere chances of an unsuccessful stock raid? This is pre-eminently America's period of industrial construction on a large scale. Allan Ryan's preference has always been very markedly for industrial investments. Does he, therefore, stand in line to be Wall Street's dominant figure in this generation, as Hill and Harriman, born railroad builders, were during the era of railroad development? What sort of person is he? What are his controlling qualities of mind and character?

Twice during the hottest period of the Stutz fight I spent a couple of uninterrupted hours with him. The second occasion was the night of the day he exploded the bombshell of his resignation from the Exchange, and it was characteristic of him that his mind should be full not of that sensation and its consequences but of the fact that his two oldest boys were home from school for a few days and had just been out for a hotel dinner with him. Then some passing remark brought up the subject of one of his industrial properties, and it was equally characteristic that he analysed and explained it for a full half hour, refusing to be turned aside to any other theme before that subject was exhausted.

Not till then did we get to speak of Wall Street. His comment, as I have indicated, was far from affectionate. Except as a place where capital must be secured and securities floated, he had no interest in it.

"They don't look past their own noses," he repeated. They have no sense of genuine values. They're automatic alarmists, like a flock of sheep. Start a rumor of some minor misfortune among them, a strike rumor, for instance, and they'll all start short selling, in full expectation that the bottom is dropping out of the country at last instead of realising that the United States of America is bigger than any event or any institution or any set of men. They won't use their eyes and ears and rely on them to form their own opinions. Certainly the Stock Exchange ought to be incorporated, changed from an irresponsible club and clique to a fiduciary public institution subject to supervision as a bank is, to protect not only the country and the investing public but the members themselves against the failure to grasp the inwards of conditions.

"We were speaking of the Stutz raid. You're not a Wall Street man and you know nothing about Stutz. But if you did know what Wall Street easily had a chance to know, I'm very sure you wouldn't have sold a tenth of a share short because you would have seen it would be a losing gamble. Stutz is one of the soldiest values in the country. When I took Stutz over in 1916 it was selling around 55. The plant had 60,000 square feet of floor space, and the net earnings the year before had been $366,000. We capitalised it at $375,000, and now its assets amount to over $7,000,000. The floor space has been multiplied by six, we have actual cash assets of above two millions, and this year's net earnings so far at the rate of $3,500,000. And all this phenomenal expansion, brought about by pouring all excess profits back into the business. The earnings have not a single fixed charge against them, not a share of preferred stock or a bond outstanding. It's a wonderful example of what American opportunity combined with initiative and right management can accomplish.

"They thought they could overthrow a value like that with a short raid; and now they are squealing because I fought them off and gave them a good licking. That's Wall Street for you. They were fighting for money. I was fighting for production and real values. I never cared much for money, anyway, and I've long been past the point where it meant anything to me, for myself. A lone man ought to be able to keep busy and happy if he's sure of $15 a week. If he can't, there's something the matter with him. Of course, if he's married, he'll want to be able to give his loved ones all their hearts ask for, but in my case, thank God, that's been seen to once for all, and I don't care anything about money any more except as a thing to work with.

"And I don't care anything about fighting, either, just for the sake of fighting. If others will mind their own business, I'll mind mine; there's no vindictiveness in me against the Stutz shorts, but I'll fight hard when I have to. And most of my life has been a fight. I started with nothing and I've made every cent I have. Nobody ever helped me. I borrowed the money to buy my seat on the Exchange and start in business for myself, and with what I made as a broker I bought and developed my first production, and when I was twenty-five I had a million and seemed on Easy Street. But I lost a lot of it by being a fool, and then I got tuberculosis. It took three years to get my health again, and when I came back from the West I was flat broke. Not an asset in this world but my seat on the Exchange and my family to look out for. I've said nobody ever helped me. There was the one exception. I needed capital to restart business and money to support my family till commissions began to come in, and my dear mother staked me, guaranteeing my notes at a certain national bank.

"That was in 1914, and I just started coming back when the war broke out and the Exchange closed. I remember exactly how I reached out for my hat when that news came. My partner asked me where I was going, and I told him up to the bank to explain I couldn't continue my monthly payments on those notes till business resumed again. On the way up to the bank an idea darted into my head—munitions! And then another—food! And another—transportation! Europe had stopped producing and gone to destroying and would need munitions to kill with and food to eat while she killed and transportation to get them across the ocean, and America would have to meet the demand.

"I went into the bank repeating those three words like a refrain—food, munitions, transportation—and after I had arranged about my notes I told them they'd have to get busy furnishing Europe with those three necessities and would have to lend me more money so I could get busy too.

"That," said Allan Ryan, "is how I got on my feet again. And as fast as I got capital to use I invested it in my lifelong hunch and bought production. Stutz came first, then Stromberg Carburetors, and since then Consolidated Textiles and Continental Candy and a lot of others. Over in Newark we're finishing construction on the most up-to-date candy factory in the world to turn out a million and a half pounds a day, regardless of the weather and the moisture, and out in Chicago a match factory is coming along which will soon be half as big as the Diamond Match Company. Production—buying it and developing it—that's my enthusiasm. Think of the demand! This country brings $15,000,000,000 of new wealth out of the ground every year, and that's all got to be turned to human uses by production. It's the one genuine 'sure thing' there is. You can't miss on it if you follow sound business principles."

"What are those business principles?" I asked him.

"Well," he said, "the first is, don't be a spendthrift with your surplus earnings. Keep your dividends down and pour the surplus back into the business, as Mr. Harriman poured them back into his railroads, and as we've done in Stutz, for instance, until your plant is in condition to meet your demand and your financial foundation is absolutely sure. Another is, avoid preferred stock and bonds as you would poison. As long as fixed dividend and interest charges stand against your earnings your President will have to be working partly for the capitalists who hold those securities when he ought to be working wholly for production. If only common stock is out and lean weeks or months or years come, you're in a position just to lock the stable door and let the horse stand quiet till the goin's better.

"Another big point," he said, "is proper organisation. In fact, I believe that organisation is 75 percent of the battle. And with organisation goes supervision. Every plant manager of every one of our properties has to send me every day a statement which shows the sales for that day, the production for that day, the cash in bank and various other items. In that way everything is put under my eyes every moment. If there's any improvement anywhere we can find out at once what or who caused it, and if there's any falling off we can stop the leak with the minimum of wastage. Of course," he added, "all that means work. But if a man is not willing to work and does not like to work he'd better stay out of business instead of getting put out of it by the workers. There's no such thing as easy success, and get-rich-quick ideas, in my experience, never turn out to be anything but ideas. Make yourself be patient, wait for results, is another fundamental business principle. That everybody square is another, whether it's your workmen, your partners, your managers or your stockholders. That's why I won't stand for any destructive raiding on my securities from any source or anybody. I have twenty thousand stockholders. They're going to be protected.

"Buy production, build it up, remember you're living in America and go ahead regardless of all fools who sell real values short on passing flurries. As old Mr. Morgan said, any man who's a bear on the United States is something which can't be repeated. This country is a whole lot bigger than any man or all of the men in it. Its resources are boundless. As I said, $15,000,000,000 of new wealth comes out of its soil every year. And if out of all its production we'd have sense enough to set aside 10 percent for surplus, if every year for twenty years you and I and every other American would set aside 10 cents of every dollar that comes in to us as income and let it compound at 6 percent interest at the end of that period there would be more wealth in America than has been created here from the day Columbus landed to this moment.

"That," said Mr. Ryan, "is how I see America, and how everybody else ought to see it. The big trouble with financial New York is that its outlook is so narrow. I tell may friends who are Presidents of banks they ought to compel their juniors to make at least one journey a year across the country and be sure to send monitors along to see that the young men look out of the car windows instead of smoking cigars with each other, rehashing Street gossip and burying their noses after each station in the latest batch of stock quotations. The productive opportunities and the productive needs of this country are boundless. It comes home to me with fresh force every time I make an inspection trip out to one of our plants and watch the track stretch out between the miles and miles of towns and homes and factories and farms and barnyards and grain fields. When I get back again and into the Street gambling in the fluctuations of stocks or taking easy money in commissions from other gamblers seems pretty small and dreary to me, I find my mind fills up with new ideas to buy and improve production for myself and for the investors who have sense enough to set aside that 10 percent surplus every year and put it where it will bring them nearer 50 percent than 6. For you must remember that the slow and sure method of pouring the surplus back and back and back into the business brings a time when the pouring is done—when your business is developed to its maximum and the earnings are velvet. Stutz comes up there again for an example. All the money that's needed, at least for the present, has been put in there, and we're reaping the result of our waiting. We had reached the point where we could declare a 100 percent stock dividend. And that's just the time Wall Street, with its keen business judgment, chose to raid it, because it was sure the stock was selling at an artificial level! They're just plain damn fools, I tell you, and so is every other man who tries to get rich quick."

Such is Allan A. Ryan in his outlook and his beliefs—a man who knows precisely where he stands and what's around him; who knows exactly what he wants and moves directly and promptly to get it; a very rich man's son who has always been fiercely independent, who has made his own way from the start; a very rich man himself, who cares very little for money but very much for being constantly busy at something productive; a builder and doer and, when need is, a fighter; audacious and self-contained, and essentially in all his tastes and tendencies a simple-hearted home man, fonder and prouder of his six children than of all his other achievements and possessions. Also, a rather shy man.

"I'd much rather," he said, "you wouldn't write about me. I don't want any publicity. I don't want to capitalise this Stutz fight. All I ask of anybody is just to let me alone to attend to my work. But if you're bound to say something, I wish you'd be sure to say this: I owe a great deal to some of the men who've been friends of mine since boyhood, men like old Mr. Morgan and the elder Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Rogers and Mr. Archbold and Mr. Harriman. I used to execute stock orders for them and they took time to give me a lot of good business advice and counsel. It was Mr. Harriman, for instance, who ground that principle into me of being very moderate about dividends and pouring back your excess earnings until your finances were shockproof. To hear me spouting here about what I've done with Stutz and what I'm going to do with the other properties, you might get a notion that Allan Ryan credits himself with a corner on all the business brains in the country. Whereas, nobody knows better than Allan Ryan that it's only been an ounce or two of brains and the rest of it plain guts and a willingness to learn and to work hard. And put it down, too, that I'm not a plug-ugly scrapper or a cut-throat. Fighting gives me no pleasure. But I'll fight when I have to—whether it's against lack of capital or a condition in a factory or a little clique in Wall Street that tries to hamper and hinder and wreck an attempt at production."

Mr. Ryan stands 6 feet 2 inches, is rangily rather than compactly built, has a frank and friendly brown eye and an equally friendly smile, though he is apt to get tremendously in earnest the moment his mind concentrates on any topic. And readers of his recent communications to the Board of Governors of the New York Stock Exchange will realise that he knows how to say exactly what he thinks and what he means. Indeed, simple and forceful directness seems to be his most marked characteristic.

HOOVER FOR PRESIDENT

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Gentlemen: Being from the "solid South" I am, by tradition a Democrat. However I am also an American and would vote for the man I considered as being best fitted, all circumstances considered, for the presidency.

The United States will be compelled to take a more active part in international affairs and we should have a man who is widely traveled and who will be able to approach international questions sympathetically. We also need a business man for this job. Mr. Hoover comes nearer filling the necessary qualifications than any man now before the public. I believe Mr. Hoover would give the "square deal", the Standard Oil Co. is howling for. I also believe he would give the common citizen the same square deal. Furthermore, I believe he would be able to take the proper attitude toward China and affairs Oriental and, last but not least, see to it that we build and maintain a respectable merchant marine. Very truly yours,

Robt. E. Beddoe.

Wuchow, June 2, 1920.

How Doctors Count Blood Corpuscles

Blood corpuscles are counted by physicians in many diseases, it being necessary to know how many on the average there are in a cubic centimeter of blood. The apparatus for this purpose is called a haemacytometer. Before the war the haemacytometers were imported, but a Mr. Levy improved them so in America that the best are now made in this country. In speaking of them the Scientific American says:

"No one examining this American standard haemacytometer under the microscope can fail to recognise the skill displayed in etching these rulings. In one type the central square millimeter is divided into one-four-hundredth square millimeter areas with an extra line in every fifth square for convenience in counting red corpuscles. The eight surrounding square millimeters are each divided into sixteen small squares for accuracy and convenience in counting the white corpuscles. Notwithstanding the necessity of working within such narrow limits, the intersections of these rulings are perfect and the manner in which all the lines are cut never fails to provoke admiration."

The Experience Of A Timid Man

He Wanted To Have Something Bunked In The Cellar For Various Emergencies

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

Time was when I could wrap the drapery of my couch about me and lie down to pleasant dreams. Time also was when I could look the whole world in the face—including policemen.

Now when I read of criminals who "see each bush an officer" my heart goes out to them. I have a fellow feeling for Eugene Aram. I shudder with apprehension if a guardian of the law gives me more than a passing glance. I waken in a cold sweat if I hear a tap at the door after 9 p.m.

I sneak to and from my work along back streets. I would wear false whiskers if I could find a pair to fit me.

I am not an addict, but like most people with a turn for hospitality, I like to have a little in the house for visiting friends, who always tell me how dry they are as soon as they get inside the door.

I tried the prescription game for a while, but it didn't do. Even before I had exhausted the good nature of all the doctors I knew, a pint at a time didn't go very far on Sunday afternoon, with ten or twelve sincere drinkers around the fireside.

So when Buck said he knew where he could get me a case for $110, I hailed the news with loud outcries of delight.

"I'll bring the stuff around some night," said Buck. "I've got a few cases to deliver to some of the rest of the crowd. Don't expect me till you see me, and don't pay me anything till afterward. Even then you'd better not give me anything but bills."

I waited a week and nothing happened. I began to get anxious. I telephoned to Buck, and they said he was out. Getting a little uneasy I had him paged in several places, but he wasn't in any of them.

I went down to the police station and inquired if they had made any important arrests lately. I felt a little reassured when they told me the jail was empty.

MYSTERY OF A NIGHT

That night I had a premonition that something was going to happen. I went to bed as usual, but I couldn't sleep.

Along about 10 o'clock there came a tap at the door.

I rose hurriedly, put on an overcoat and went to the door.

A perfectly strange man was on the step. At the gate was a large rakish motor car.

"Where'll I leave it?" said the man.

I looked up and down the street. Half a block away a policeman was approaching, swinging his club and whistling.

"For Heaven's sake," I whispered back, "go away. Don't you see that policeman?"

"Sure, I see the policeman," he said with no attempt to muffle his voice. "What about him?"

"Get in your car as quick as you can and drive away," I told him. "If he asks you why you were here, tell him you got the wrong address. Come back in an hour.

"Have it your own away," he said, and returned to the car.

I almost sobbed with relief.

The next hour I spent in hideous suspense. Suppose the policeman had seen the object in the car and had merely walked away so as to when he returned! Suppose he was now waiting at the end of the street to pounce on me as I received that fateful case!

I heard a step outside, followed by another tap at the door. There was the man. At his feet was a large, square parcel.

I seized it, and was about to back into the hall with it when a gust of wind from within slammed the door.

I had no key. I dared not ring the bell. The rest of the family is dry. I did not care to have it known that I was trafficking in illegal goods.

For an instant I stood irresolute. Then, seeing a large form bulked against the middle distance I made up my mind.

"Take it back," I said to the man. "I don't want it."

"Take it back yourself," he said sulkily. "I've had all the trouble with it I'm going to have."

The policeman sauntered to the gate and stopped.

"Nice evening," he said.

I agreed with him politely.

"Need any help?"

"None at all, thank you."

"Moving out or in?"

"Why, er—in, I guess."

He strolled up the walk and eyed the package curiously.

"What is it?" he asked.

"It's a basket," said the man who brought it. My boss told me to bring it here and I did, and he chased me away, and now I've brought it again."

"Huh!" commented the cop, bending over the package. "Hootch?"

A window opened.

"Henry," said a well known voice. "That must be the laundry. Mrs. Clancy said she'd send her husband around with it tonight. He's Mr. Judson's chauffeur, you know."

"Laundry, heh," said the policeman. "Let's have a look at it."

He bent over and tore open the package. Inside was a hamper. And laundry was what it contained.

Buck hasn't sent around the case yet. If he does I'm going to be out. One scare of that kind is plenty.

Worker Boy's Best Friend

By DR. WM. A. McKEEVER

Professor In The University Of Kansas And An Authority On Social Problems

Young Man. I want to commend to you the fellowship and the friendship of common, busy men. I want you to know them, to believe in them, so that they may belive in you. I have often thanked God for my humble origin, but have perhaps more frequently thanked Him for my present associations with plain and humble men. A brief personal narrative will explain.

Recently I made a trip through Pittsburg, New York and Buffalo to Montreal to address a noon lunch assembly of the Canadian Club, one of the greatest organisations of the kind on this continent. For a full night and a day we fought our way through a snow storm. At dawn we were three hours late, and, by that schedule, I had only a margin of ten minutes. We must hold the pace or I would lose the trouble of a 3,000-mile trip to make perhaps the most important address of my life. And, being a stranger, who would befriend me?

Well, my boy, it was the splendid group of men in charge of that snow-delayed train. The despatcher, the train conductor, the Pullman and dining crews, the flagmen, brakemen and porters—all these worked like a lot of war heroes and used every available means to get me to my appointment on time.

It was worth the price of the trip to jostle with these sturdy hustlers for a day. To voice their sentiments; to prove your training and former experience suitable for getting under their load; to be able to speak their language as they speak it when at their best; to sympathise with their troubles; to find glory in their triumphs; to see divinity in the plain, honest fiber of the great, common man of the world.

This, my boy, is the accomplishment which I am here especially commending to you. And if you are not capable of real heart-to-heart and mind-to-mind association with such sterling men as those constituting train crews and boat crews, and shop crews; then I say that you are not competent to enjoy one of the greatest satisfactions of life.

Lay aside that vain ambition to shine in the smart set; put away for a while those super-clothes; take a term of sweating with the laboring classes; learn to lift a common man's load, to eat a common man's meal and to think a common man's thoughts.

That stirring twenty-four hours with the train crew was certainly one of the most pleasurable of my life. I have written to the man "higher up" to thank him for assembling such a crew.

Rust-Proof Steel For Use In Dentistry

At a convention of German dentists recently held at Jena one of the members spoke on the use of rust-proof steel in dentistry, says the Scientific American.

This steel, highly alloyed with chromium and nickel, has been put on the market by the house of Krupp. It is protected by patents. The steel is remarkable for its high power of chemical resistance to corrosion; it is excellently suited for mechanical purposes, since it possesses an extraordinary toughness. The fine qualities of this new form of steel became evident specially during th war.

Hauptmeyer, the lecturer, has tried to use the steel in dentistry, for it not only equals gold and platinum in mechanical value, but it even surpasses these precious metals in regard to power of resistance to chemical influences. Especially good results are promised in the manufacture of instruments with edged surfaces which have to be sterilised without injury to the edge.

The surface of the rust-proof steel acquires an intense brightness from polishing, and it may therefore be used for mouth and throat mirrors. For the purpose of fastening artificial teeth in rubber the steel will probably also become a valuable substitute for platinum and gold, which are now in use. The rust-proof steel may be drawn into fine wire. On account of its elasticity and firmness even dental plates may be cast from the steel, the weight of such a plate being just half that of a gold plate made from the same impression.
